uel McCue's Children.

Mr. D. R. Midyette, Southern manager for the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company, has in his possession four checks for $2,500 each, payable to the guardians of the four children of the late Samuel McCue. The checks are from the home office of the company; and cover the $10,000 policy carried on McCue's life. The company ascertained the name of the guardian for each child and divided the money equally, so that it cannot be diverted for other purposes, for example, the payment of the dead man's debts. It is believed now that probably all the companies will pay up without court proceedings.

While he was seated in the parlor the child came in from the street; his cheeks were scarlet and his pretty eyes glistened like live coals. He was snugly bundled up, but his curls hung in a distracted condition about his shoulders.

Dr. Bosley says that he simply marveled at the child's beauty and thought, without an exception, that he was the prettiest child he ever saw. When informed that the child had never worn a hat, he remarked in most enthusiastic terms that he did not wonder at the

Quite an interesting incident in connection with the child's rebellion against the hat occurred about three weeks ago. In company with his sister, little Clinton was on his way to school one morning, when a policeman stopped the pair and wanted to know where his hat was He was comfortably garbed in a long overcoat, and was snugly bundled up about the neck. The policeman evidently thinking that he had lost his hat, or that someone had taken it from him, stopped him with the intention of rendering a service. The child was greatly troubled over the interference, and for some minutes was unable to offer an excuse for not having his hat on. # MORE CHIEF TALK

Capt. Wm. Myers Mentioned and Chief Hulce's Friends Active.

There is still much talk about the action of the Police Board in deciding to go of the Police Board in deciding to go into the election of a permanent chief at the next meeting, and there is a great deal of speculation as to Captain Hulce's possible successor. Captain W. M. Myers, of the Howitzers, is being talked of, and he admits that he has been approached on the subject. He says he has been considering the subject, but would not say whether or not be will run.

The friends of Captain Hulce are active, and by no means concede that he will be superseded in the office.

Captain R. L. Masurier is mentioned, and if the board goes outside the present force for a chief, his friends believe he is an available man. However, there is nothing tangible in the situation at this time, and all the talk heard is more or less speculation.
